Assignment

Article 2

1. The representative hereby assigns and transfers on behalf of the heirs to Stemra the mechanical reproduction rights in the author's repertoire within the meaning of Article 1 A to E and in the scope as defined in Articles 1 and 19 of this agreement, with the exception of those rights that the representative wishes to exclude from being transferred to Stemra, as indicated by the representative in the 'Specification of exploitation rights' form. Stemra accepts this assignment and transfer of the mechanical reproduction rights.
2. The mechanical reproduction rights in the author's repertoire are therefore hereby assigned and transferred to Stemra.
3. As a result of the assignment and transfer as described in paragraphs 1 and 2, the assigned and transferred mechanical reproduction rights in any work belonging to the repertoire shall become part of Stemra's assets. Stemra has thus acquired the exclusive right, to the exclusion of all other parties, including the heirs and their representative, to exercise or cause the exercise anywhere in the world of the mechanical reproduction rights assigned and transferred to it.

Exploitation and enforcement

Article 3

1. Stemra shall exploit and enforce the mechanical reproduction rights in the repertoire, either under its own name or not, anywhere in the world and shall perform or cause the performance of any and all legal acts relating thereto.¹
2. Stemra shall therefore grant or refuse a license to record and distribute works of the repertoire on sound and/or image carriers, determine the conditions for granting such license, be entitled to take legal action against any infringement of the mechanical reproduction rights, and perform or cause the performance of any and all acts, both judicially and extrajudicially, which the heirs, the representative or one or more of these, would be entitled to perform in the absence of this agreement.

Distribution

Article 4

1. Stemra undertakes with due observance of the relevant articles, regulations and decisions lawfully taken by Stemra to distribute the revenues it receives to the participants entitled to a share thereof.
2. The representative affirms that the heirs have granted him the exclusive power to receive the monies accruing to them and that in making the payment to the representative Stemra has fulfilled all its obligations towards each of them.
3. Complaints concerning distributions made in any year will be accepted at the latest on 31 December of the second year following the calendar year in which the relevant distribution was made. After this period, the representative's right to complain with regard to the relevant distribution shall have expired.
4. If Stemra has established that a complaint is well-founded, it will only be obliged to pay back the deficit; interest will be paid if notice is given, from the date of notification and no earlier, at the 12-month Euribor rate plus 1.5%. The interest notified shall run from the moment that a claim is substantiated by the rightholder in the manner indicated by Stemra, and only from the moment at which, and for the extent to which, Stemra has actually received the general or specific licence fee in question. The Board determines annually what information has to be provided and informs the participants of this. The interest rate clause is not applicable to distributions made by sister organisations.
5. Except in the event of wilful intent or gross negligence on the part of Stemra itself, it shall never be liable for any form of damage or loss, under any name whatsoever, or for payment of interest other than provided for in paragraph 4.

Notification of repertoire

Article 5

1. Upon entering into this agreement, the representative on his own account as well as on behalf of the heirs undertakes to notify Stemra of works belonging to the author's repertoire in the manner to be indicated by Stemra, in so far as this notification has not already taken place. The representative shall furthermore send Stemra, at Stemra's first request, all documents relating to the aforesaid works that Stemra requires.
2. Such notification shall entitle the representative to distributions with regard to the aforesaid works. By means of such notification, the representative furthermore confirms the assignment and transfer of the mechanical reproduction rights in any work created by the author but not yet notified, as described in article 2.
3. If the representative fails to notify Stemra of a work, he may not claim any payment with regard to the relevant work, notwithstanding his obligation yet to notify

- Stemra of the work in the manner indicated by Stemra, after which he shall become entitled to claim payment.
4. Stemra shall be entitled to charge the representative any costs to be incurred by Stemra as a result of incorrect or incomplete notification of works by the representative.
 5. If the representative fails to notify Stemra of a work or to do so in good time, Stemra shall have the right to charge the representative any costs it has incurred in obtaining the respective notification after all.

Warranty obligation

Article 6

1. The representative acting on behalf of the heirs warrants and guarantees to Stemra that the heirs hold the full and unencumbered mechanical reproduction rights in the repertoire and that they are exclusively authorised to enter into this agreement and to effect the assignment and transfer of the mechanical reproduction rights in the repertoire referred to in this agreement.
2. The representative in his capacity furthermore warrants and guarantees that no part of the author's repertoire in respect of which Stemra exercises or causes the exercise of the mechanical reproduction rights under this agreement infringes the copyright or any other absolute right of a third party, or involves anything that is otherwise unlawful towards a third party. He agrees to indemnify Stemra against any third-party claims in this respect and against the consequences that such claims may have for Stemra.
3. No claim and no right to payment of revenues shall arise with regard to works that in any way infringe the copyright or any other (absolute) right of a third party.

Other obligations of the representative and the heirs

Article 7

1. As a result of the assignment and transfer of the mechanical reproduction rights as described in article 2, and in relation to the warranty and guarantee obligation of the heirs as described in article 6, neither the representative nor the heirs shall be allowed during the term of this agreement to undertake any actions that create the appearance or give the impression that they or any party other than Stemra exploits and/or enforces the mechanical reproduction rights in the repertoire covered by the said transfer.
2. They realise in particular that, as a result of the assignment and transfer as described in article 2, they are not allowed to assign or transfer the mechanical reproduction rights covered by the said transfer to any third party during the term of this agreement.
3. Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph 1, Stemra may in exceptional cases – which are made known by Stemra in writing or in a publication issued periodically or by circular letter or by advertisement in a popular national newspaper or by electronic mail or by making available by means of the internet site of Stemra or pursuant to a written agreement with the representative – give its consent for the heirs themselves to exploit and enforce the mechanical reproduction rights assigned and transferred to Stemra, without prejudice to what is stipulated in article 16.

4. For each infringement of a prohibition set forth in paragraphs 1 or 2, the board may impose a penalty of not more than € 2,250, payable to Stemra, without prejudice to any other right of claim of Stemra, in particular its right to claim full damages.

Cooperation

Article 8

1. The representative and the heirs undertake, if and insofar Stemra considers the personal assistance of one of them necessary for the implementation of this agreement, to provide such assistance within reason at Stemra's first request.
